

Sharon Frankenbery is a family and consumer sciences teacher at Fredonia High School in Fredonia, Kansas. She is in her 24th year of teaching and 24th year of advising an FCCLA chapter. Sharon uses the Family Economics & Financial Education curriculum with high school students in her Life Skills class. Throughout her career Sharon has been active in several professional organizations including; Kansas Association of Family and Consumer Sciences (KAFCS) where she served as president, Kansas Association of Teachers of Family and Consumer Sciences (KATFACS), Association of Career and Technical Education, Family and Consumer Sciences Education Association (FCSEA) and the National Coalition of Family and Consumer Sciences where she represents FCSEA. Sharon received the Pittsburg State University 2004 Outstanding Alumni Award in Family and Consumer Sciences and the Kansas Association of Career and Technical Association Teacher in Community Service Award in 2002.